

192nd Fighter Wing Command Chief's Commitment to Airman Message

By Chief Master Sgt. Mike Bouley
192nd Fighter Wing Command Chief

4/13/2015 – JOINT BASE LANGLEY-EUSTIS, Va.

I am honored and excited to be your Command Chief!

As the 192nd Fighter Wing Command Chief, my responsibility is multifaceted. First, I will steer the development of future leaders from within our enlisted force by focusing on renewing our commitment to the profession of arms and ensuring our training and professional development centers on our core values and the needs of our Airmen.

Secondly, I will ensure the health of our force is strong, equipped and maintained. It is my responsibility to guarantee our supervisors, including myself, support our Airmen and their families by leading from the front. We will engage our enlisted force, not only in their professional development and specialty training, but also in their readiness, well-being and personal challenges.

Lastly, I pledge to recognize and embrace our achievements. Whether it is sharing our successes with others, formally recognizing the performance of our Airmen or simply telling each of you, "Thank you," it is critical to demonstrate our appreciation for the incredible things we do for the Commonwealth of Virginia, our military and the country as a whole.
